STRL News

- Sterling Infrastructure \(STRL\) Stock Could Be About Right After Strong Earnings And 2026 Outlook

Sahm | 20260625T071027 | Bullish (0.428)

Sterling Infrastructure (STRL) has strong momentum after robust earnings and increased 2026 guidance, driven by E-Infrastructure projects for data centers and semiconductors. The stock is trading near its analyst target of $941, raising questions about remaining upside despite double-digit revenue and net income growth. While analysts see its fair value as "about right," its high P/E ratio suggests potential valuation risk.

- Can Sterling Capture More Value From Texas Infrastructure Demand?

Yahoo Finance Singapore | 20260624T131242 | Bullish (0.761)

Sterling Infrastructure, Inc. (STRL) is seeing significant growth opportunities in Texas due to the accelerating demand for large-scale infrastructure projects, especially in mission-critical developments and digital infrastructure. The company is leveraging resources from both its western and southeastern operations to expand its presence, with Texas contributing substantially to recent project wins and a $1.2 billion increase in backlog for its electrical services business, CEC. While facing competition from rivals like MasTec and EMCOR, Sterling's strong price performance, high valuation, and upward trending earnings estimates position it for continued success in this favorable infrastructure cycle.

• Sterling Infrastructure Inc \(STRL\) Shares Fall 4.3% -- GF Value Says Still Overvalued

GuruFocus | 20260623T234043 | Bearish (-0.449)

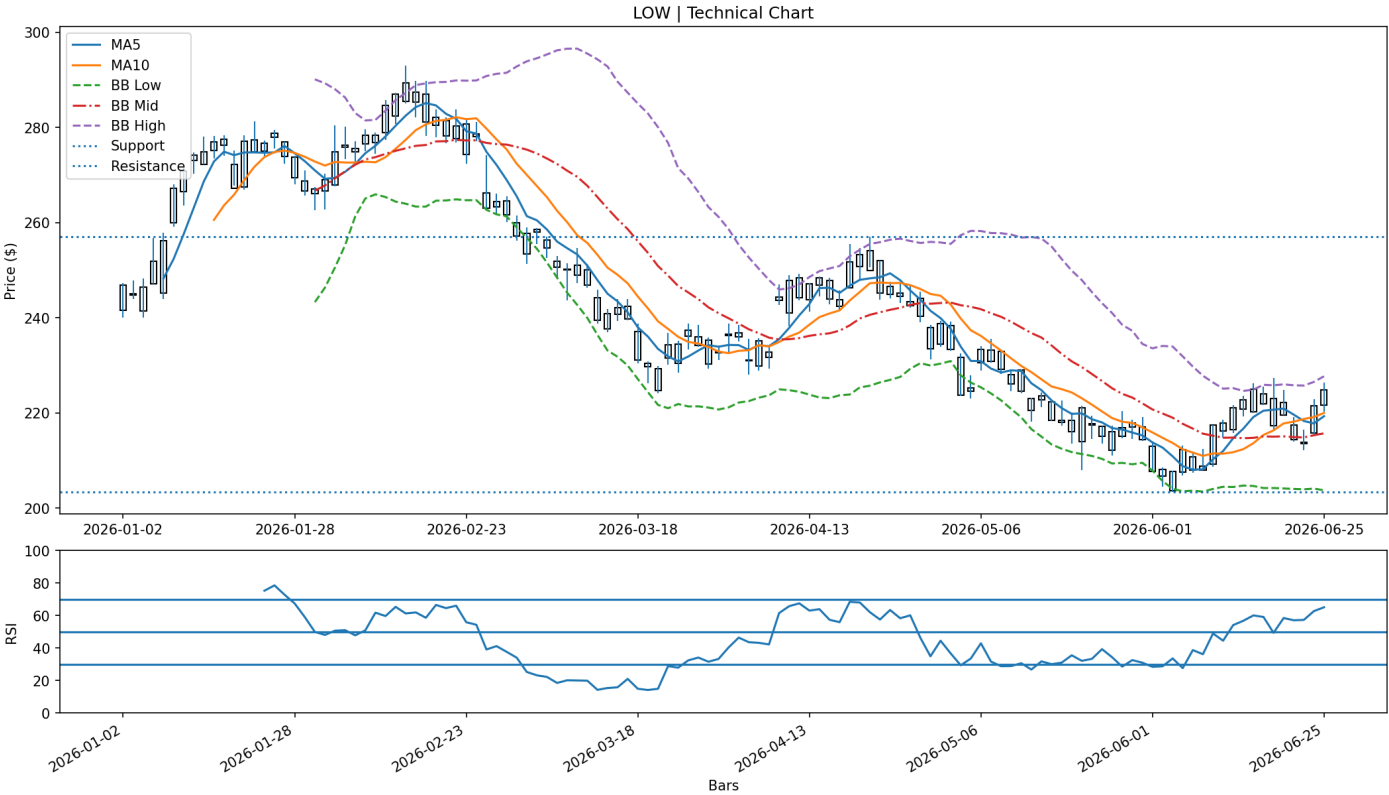

Sterling Infrastructure Inc (STRL) shares dropped 4.3% to $892.25, with GuruFocus (GF) Value indicating the stock is significantly overvalued at 331.6% above its intrinsic value of $206.74. Despite a strong GF Score of 83/100, driven by excellent growth, profitability, and financial strength, its valuation score is very low (1/10). Insider selling of $47.6 million over the past three months, with no buying activity, suggests a lack of insider confidence and further supports concerns about its inflated price.
